

Ten years' time

We sat at your veranda when we split and this is how I remember it
Reading the paper, just reading the paper
I saw you vanish like water vapour

It's been a decade
Ten years' time
Tenth of a hundred years
Time to forget the tears

You said you couldn't handle the guitar
I wondered how it had gotten that far
You said you needed to visit a damn shrink
I thought you needed to play, not think

It's been a decade
Ten years' time
Tenth of a hundred years
Time to forget the fears

We got drunk, we got along
I remember thinking "this deserves a song"
Much has changed, more is the same
We missed ten years, but none is to blame

Since then I've had my share of success
I've had some moments of glory, I guess
But the best of them all was that summer's day
When I started hoping you're back to stay

It's been a decade
Ten years' time
Tenth of a hundred years
Time to forget the fears
A whole decade
Ten years' time...
